

KAMINCO presents RCMmarine

True exception-based remote condition monitoring for the marine industry

RCM Marine Ltd is a UK based company that provides state of the art remote monitoring services tailored to the shipping environment. What we have done is to adapt well proven vibration analysis technology and combined it with existing satellite communications to offer remote monitoring of critical machinery on board ships. A portable system also provides an opportunity to refine preventive maintenance management & yield additional costs savings.

RCM marine offers:

The RCM Voyager system which provides real time, exception-based condition monitoring for marine machinery. The system monitors operational and safety-critical machinery, such as turbochargers, reduction gears, shaft alternators and cargo machinery, giving early warnings of impending failures through vibration analysis. Alerts describing the failure type are not only given to the crew on the vessel, but transmitted via satellite to notify the superintendent & other office staff through email or SMS messages. The main benefit is the early detection of impending faults enabling action to prevent off hire costs.

The Mariner 3, which is a neat predictive maintenance solution using exception-based vibration monitoring. Developed by marine industry experts, it is used to collect data quickly and report faults for auxiliary machinery. The Mariner system is tailored to each individual vessel and analyses information automatically without the need for any specialist knowledge or training. When tied to a PMS approved by Class it eliminates the unnecessary dismantling of machinery. Furthermore, significant cost-savings are achieved by the ability of Mariner to recognise trends and initiate appropriate warnings.
